Walker, of Massachusetts: In the House of Representatives, Wednesday, August 23, 1893 The House having under consideration the bill (H. R. 1) to repeal a part of an act, approved July 14, 1890, entitled An act directing the purchase of silver bullion and the issue of Treasury notes thereon, and for other purposes - Mr. Walker said: Mr. Speaker: My friend from Illinois [Mr. Cannon] has just asked, to what feast are we as Republicans invited? Let me say to him that we have been complaining for many years, and are now complaining, that the least the Democratic party provide is not a feast fit for our attendance; but if they have now provided a feast fit for our attendance, I am willing to go, and to go joyfully, and propose to go; and they certainly have done so in their proposition to repeal the purchasing clause of the silver act of July 14, 1890. The great complaint which is made against our monetary system is the lack of currency. That is the burden of the song of my friend Mr. Cannon who has just taken his seat. Let me say to this House that it is impossible to have enough currency unless the currency is flexible. We have now $1,100,000,000 of currency of various denominations, ring-streaked and speckled. We have a financial system that is a disgrace to the United States, as is our currency. Our bank exchanges are about $400,000,000 a day. Three and a half per cent of these exchanges are made in currency and we are short of currency. Yes! And we would be short of...
